Measurement and mutual responsibility: Evolution of a benchmarking process

2In the corporate world, the term "benchmarking" is sometimes used to mean identifying best practice in a particular activity or function and analyzing a firm's performance against that standard. Here, benchmarking is simply meant as a way of defining improvement goals and measuring progress against those goals in concrete terms.

- creating an environment which protects and nurtures innovation by holding off premature judgment, even as it maintains improving student outcomes as the ultimate measure of success; and
- broadening the range of measures used to judge student outcomes.
